Zodiac Services

Electronics Restoration

Electronics recovery and electronics cleaning is a highly technical field. At Zodiac, our restoration technicians and engineers have the technical expertise to restore electronics that have been exposed to smoke and water contamination. Sensitive electronics can be returned to their pre-loss condition using the technology we developed over the last 15 years. We are IICRC certified which means we follow the most current standards and practices available in the industry.

Machinery Restoration

Machinery and equipment restoration begins with proper equipment evaluation. Our cleaning and decontamination services are provided for disaster recovery as well as preventive maintenance.

If your company experiences a property loss that could have a significant impact on continued business operations, we can respond immediately to help you determine the best course of action and the most cost efficient method for restoring your equipment to a pre-loss condition.

Combining their expertise with today's technology and the latest in cleaning materials, our technicians can help you maintain the efficiency of your equipment. When parts become dirty, they become ineffective and can shorten equipment life span. Zodiac technicians will assess what is necessary to clean and prolong the life of your equipment, which will save you costly repairs or replacement in the future.

Document Restoration

Having your documents and valuable papers damaged by water or smoke can be overwhelming. The key to effective document restoration is having a reliable source to help you rebound from such a loss. Our trained personnel will advise you on the critical first steps that must be taken to mitigate further damage to your documents. We will then work closely with you to organize and prioritize the documents that can be restored or re-produced.

Our technical experts will utilize the appropriate document restoration method that will obtain the best results for your document recovery.

Dehumidification

Effective water damage restoration begins with proper drying and dehumidification techniques. Dehumidification removes moisture from affected areas reducing damage to property and contents. Our dehumidification technology dries out rooms quickly to eliminate odors and stop mold from forming. Zodiac technicians will be on site within hours of notification to begin the drying process that will reduce damage to your facility and lower the overall cost of restoration.

Air Scrubbing

Air scrubbing is a process used to remove particles, gases, or chemicals from the air within a given area. An air scrubber is a portable filtration system. Zodiac technicians will use air scrubbers during mold, smoke, or dust cleanup to remove hazardous materials that have been released in the air.

Corrosion Control

Corrosion control is a chemical process that halts or decreases the corrosion rate of a material such as metal or an alloy. If not stopped, rust and corrosion can harm all types of equipment, machinery and electronics. The effectiveness of corrosion control depends on how quickly the process is applied to equipment. With our fast response time, it is possible to achieve 90-99% effectiveness in eliminating or avoiding further corrosion damage.

Data Recovery

Amset performs in-house data recovery on PCs, servers, and laptops. When a hard drive has been compromised, we are able to determine if the data can be successfully restored. In most cases, data from damaged computers can be recovered with the proper techniques and placed onto DVDs, portable hard drives, tapes, or other computers.

Contents/Property Storage

As your facility is being restored to its pre-loss condition, Zodiac Equipment Restoration can store all of your contents and property at our storage facility until you are ready to take possession. During this period you will have convenient access to your property at any time, making it easier for you to conduct business during your recovery and restoration process.

To maintain the integrity of evidence during a lengthy litigation process, Zodiac provides safe, secure, and environmentally-controlled storage for all of your needs from small items to very large equipment.

Loss Inventory Analysis

It's important to have a thorough and accurate inventory of the items damaged in a fire or water loss. Our trained personnel will perform this comprehensive service providing you with photos and documentation for all items. In addition, items will be labeled, and if necessary, brought to our facility for further evaluation.

Since 1999 our technical expertise and strong focus on fire and water restoration have helped many homeowners and businesses successfully recover from many types of disastrous situations.

Just A Few Zodiac Success Stories

When the fire department extinguished a fire at a specialty manufacturing company, many pieces of important machinery were in jeopardy of corrosion and rust. Zodiac was called in to apply its unique corrosion abatement process to the machinery to halt further damage until the equipment was moved to a new location where our technicians were able to properly restore the machines.

A fire occurred in a barn exposing numerous farm implements to soot and heat. Zodiac experts restored all of the equipment and ensured that the oil, lubrication fluids, and calibrations for all the small and large machines were to the manufacturers' specifications.

A printing press became contaminated when metal shavings infiltrated the entire press. Zodiac technicians quickly restored the six color press back to a pre-loss condition so that the press was back in operation within a few days.

A large auto body shop experienced a roof collapse, damaging thousands of automobile components. Zodiac experts inventoried every part and researched the replacement cost for every component providing the accurate information needed to document and settle the loss.
